GENERAL NEWS.

A correspondent of the Regina Leader says: "It is of course a good thing to get in new settlers, but while that is being done let those who are already here get fair and just treatment, let the country be made as easy and inhabitable as possible for those already here, then when new settlers do come in there will be less likelihood of there being disappointed."

Calgary Tribune: "It was found at the school election Friday that there is nothing to prevent Roman Catholics from voting for the Protestant trustees, and vice versa, Protestants voting in the Catholic election. As such a state of affairs was not meant to exist, it would be well to have the ordinance changed as early as possible." A little explanation from the Tribune on this point would be in order.

A short article in the Calgary Tribune on Alberta—meaning Calgary—wheat, is very misleading owing to the too comprehensive use of the word Alberta. The article says: "If the irrigation schemes now proposed are carried out there is no fear whatever but that Alberta will be as famous for grain products as she is now for stock raising." In the greater part of Alberta, that is the northern part, irrigation is no more necessary, or thought of, than in Ontario, and to speak of this country as needing irrigation to enable it to produce wheat is to do it a very serious injury in the minds of those who are not acquainted with the climatic and other differences existing between the northern and southern parts of this postal district.

The Toronto Mail says of the new Northwest school bill, that it is necessarily restricted in its application by the terms of the constitution which recognize the dual plan, but aims at the reduction of the separate system to moderate limits. It establishes a council of public instruction, which is to be composed of the members of the government, together with four other persons, two of whom shall be Protestants and two Roman Catholics, appointed by the government. One of the members of the government is to be chairman. Provision is also made for the appointment of a superintendent of education, who is, ex officio, to be the secretary of the council of public instruction. Where the majority are Roman Catholics the school will be Roman Catholic, where they are Protestants the school will be Protestant, as required by the Northwest Act. But religious instruction is only to be given after half past three o'clock, and no child is to be obliged to remain for such instruction if its parents do not so desire. There are further to be uniform text books and uniform inspection; and all teachers are to be duly qualified. The measure really brings the separate schools under state as distinguished from clerical control, and, except for the religious instruction, which is not to be compulsory, places the separate school in the same position as a public school.

NOTICE

In the Matter of the Estate of Robert Strachan, Deceased: Notice is hereby given pursuant to 22 and 23 Vic. Cap. 35 (Imp.) intituled "An Act to further Amend the Law of Property and to Relieve Trustees" that all creditors and other persons having any claims or demands upon or against The Estate of Robert Strachan, late of the town of Edmonton, in the Northwest Territories of Canada, Advocate, (who died on or about the 16th day of August, 1892, intestate, and of whose estate Letters of Administration were granted by the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories on the 8th day of December to Jessie MacRae, of said town of Edmonton, a sister of the said deceased) are hereby required to send particulars in writing, verified by statutory declaration of their claims or demands to the undersigned, Advocates for the said administration on or before the 20th day of January, 1893, after which date the said administration will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims or demands of which the said administration shall then have had notice, and that she will not be liable for the assets of the said deceased or any part thereof, so distributed, to any person of whose claims or demands she shall not then have had notice.

And Notice is hereby further given that all persons having any property or securities of the deceased are required on or before said 20th day of January to account therefor to the said administration.

Dated this 15th day of December, 1892.

A GOOD MOVE.

In view of the danger from cholera epidemic in the coming spring, the North Atlantic steamship conference, which includes the Allan, Dominion and Beaver lines, has instructed all European agents to refuse to book any German emigrants to the United States or for Canada, unless the would-be passengers have been removed from German territory three weeks previous to the dates of sailing. This proposition will practically suspend all German, Russian and Polish emigration, as Hamburg, where the cholera has reappeared, is the port of entry.

In addition, by the strict orders of the conference, all British or continental emigration to the United States has been suspended, so far as the companies' boats composing that body are concerned. Only British and Scandinavian emigrants will be booked for Canada and carried there by the lines composing the conference. The Scandinavian outflow, however, will be very large, it is expected, and the agents interested state, on the basis of advices received to date, that the present year will show the largest list of immigrants for Canada yet recorded. Definite details of the government's new policy in the matter of immigration is impatiently awaited.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, JANUARY 16, 1893

ALONG THE C. & E.

While it must be admitted that immigration has not kept pace with expectation as far as the greater part of the Territories are concerned, this cannot be said regarding that part of Northern Alberta, which lies along the C. & E. railway line for at least 150 miles of its length. The increase of population in that stretch of country in the past year has been most marked as evidenced by the rise and rapid growth of a number of smart little towns at different stations on the line. Ever since the early seventies this country has been traversed by a frequently travelled trail; and especially since the completion of the C. P. R. to Calgary, in 1883, the amount of travel has been very great, so that every foot of the ground now being so rapidly covered by settlement is known like an open book to all old residents of this section of the country, and so the change now taking place is more noticed by them than by strangers. While Edmonton town and settlement has been in existence almost from time immemorial, until '83 the stretch of country between Edmonton and Calgary was as vacant of settlement as the sea. In '73 settlement at Red Deer was begun and like that at Edmonton grew slowly from that time until '91. But even in '91 it amounted to very little, and the traveller between Calgary and Edmonton saw only the stage stations and stopping places for freighters in all that 200 miles of fertile and beautiful country. In July of 1890 the Calgary & Edmonton railway was commenced at Calgary and completed to Red Deer the same fall. In August of 1891 it was completed to Edmonton and at once the effect an immigration began to be strongly felt. But as may be very readily understood the wave of settlement did not at once rush in. People heard of a new railroad being built, of a new country, and a new kind of country being opened up, and they came to see it before making up their minds to go in and possess it. It was not until the spring of 1892 that the rush of people actually began, so that what is now seen is practically the growth of one season.

The fifty miles of plain lying immediately north of Calgary is still just as it was before the railway was built, showing that it is not the railroad but the kind of country that is the attraction. On nearing Olds, the third station north of Calgary at the point where the park country joins the plain, the first signs of new settlement are seen and little log and frame houses dot the prairie in all directions on the slopes of smooth grassy knolls, and in the shelter of cosy looking clumps of poplar and willow. This is the youngest of the settlements along the line and consequently the town is as yet chiefly in imagination. However there is the station, an immigrant shed, a store and an hotel, and the enterprising settlers are already erecting a good schoolhouse for the benefit of the children who are to be there next summer. A colony from Nebraska, of which Messrs. J. Gadsden and W. Mitchell-Innis, both old countrymen, are the leading spirits, have chosen Olds as the scene of their future tussles with fate, and there is every assurance that a large contingent of the future population of the surrounding country will be drawn from Nebraska. Besides the Nebraska men a number of leading Germans, of Waterloo, Ont., headed by J. Y. Shantz, who was chiefly instrumental in locating the Mennonites in Manitoba sixteen years ago, have pitched upon Olds as their choice, and if they are only a tenth part as successful as Mr. Shantz' exertions in Manitoba have been, the future progress and prosperity of Olds is assured. By the way, the point on the old trail, which corresponds with Olds on the railway line, was known by the much more appropriate and pleasing name of Lone Pine.

Twenty miles north of Olds is Innisfail sta.

BRICK! BRICK! YES BRICK.

Having attained the reputation of making the best brick in the Territories I will make it a point to continue to lead in that line; while thanking the building community of Edmonton and vicinity for their kind patronage in the past would invite their inspection of my work and prices in the future. Do not be deluded by parties who claim to make a pressed brick with a sand stock machine, or produce them in May in this country; it cannot be done. Pressed brick sell in the cities of Canada and the Eastern states for $20.00 and upward per thousand and can't be sold or made here for any $10.00. I set up no claim to such liberality, but can produce a good brick in July for $8.00; August, $7.00, September $6.00, and in large quantities. Parties requiring brick late or early in the season will find it to their advantage to examine what they are buying, before placing their orders.

tion and town, claimed by its residents to be the brightest, smartest and most growing town along the whole line. At this point the railway crosses the old trail just north of Contant's stopping place. The first settlers in this vicinity named the locality Poplar Grove, from the beautiful groves of poplar which crown the low hills all around, leaving wide stretches of smooth, sloping, grassy prairie between. Wood and water are more abundant than at Olds, while there is still plenty of open land for grazing or farming, and the Rocky mountains, one of the grandest sights in the world, still in full view, form the back ground of a most lovely picture. The first houses in the town of Innisfail were erected in the spring of 1891, and at the close of 1892 the place has a population of between three and five hundred. It has five or six excellent stores, two hotels, a good public school, two churches, Presbyterian and Episcopal, and indeed everything that goes to make up a thriving town the centre of a prosperous settlement. Of course but a small part of the land is yet brought under cultivation, but all the settlers keep cattle and make butter, and during the past summer a large quantity of butter was shipped from Innisfail to Calgary.

Twenty miles north of Innisfail is Red Deer, in the valley of the Red Deer river, a beautiful stream in a beautiful wide valley of clear prairie surrounded by the high land covered with clumps of spruce and poplar alternating. The Red Deer at this point is about 500 feet wide, with swift current, stony bottom and perfectly clear mountain water. The flat upon upon which the station and town are situated is perfectly level and clear of everything but the very smallest brush. The soil is slightly sandy so that the discomfort of heavy mud in wet weather is avoided. The town of Red Deer, like that of Innisfail, was only begun in the spring of 1892, the railroad having arrived late in the previous fall. The original town, if it could be so called, was about three miles further up the river, where the old trail crossed. There the stores of Messrs. Gaetz—the real pioneer of the place—and Burch were situated, also the mounted police station and three or four other houses, but the establishment of the railway crossing and station on the next flat below, entirely killed the town at the old crossing and caused the removal of whatever business had been established there to the new town. This has been added to very greatly in the past year, and the Red Deer town has now a number of business establishments that in the matter of stock carried and buildings occupied would be a credit to a place three times the size. There is nothing of the tar paper variety of architecture so frequently seen in the new west, about Red Deer. Every building is put up with the evident intention of its helping to make a neat and substantial looking town. The dining station for the railway run between Calgary and Edmonton is at Red Deer. There is a small saw mill, owned by Leo Gaetz, which has converted a great deal of the surrounding spruce bluffs into lumber. Red Deer is an important distributing point, and having the abundant water supply of the river, has advantages for the establishment of manufacturing industries which none of the towns present or prospective between that place and Calgary can possibly have. There is an immense coal deposit fourteen miles down the river, which will, no doubt, be utilized shortly and will add to the importance of the place.

SMUT.

At a recent meeting of the South Brandon farmers' institute Wm. Hull read a paper on smut in which he argued that smut was not, as generally supposed, the result of a fungus. He says: Smut seems to be undeveloped grain, or the result of unblossomed grain. The time of blossoming is the only period in which the new grain can receive vegetable life, and reproductive power. This is clearly proven by its being the only time at which two varieties can be united or crossed so as to produce a new variety. If a head of wheat does not bloom it cannot become impregnated with pollen from other grain, and if it is not, the bran covering that would have contained grain, fills with only the sap supplied from the stalk and not having received the life for a new grain is soured in the summer just as an egg not impregnated rots under the process of hatching. Ball smut is chiefly on the late and short stalks. If the wheat is thinly sown on rough land there will be large spaces on which there are no plants. The surrounding plants will continue stooling out toward the open spaces, following a law of nature in growing toward light and air. When ripening time comes the early stalks from the same root begin to ripen and soon it is too dry for the late heads to receive moisture enough to develop them past the shooting stage. These will not bloom unless they have strength to go to another resting height from the shot blade.

If the early part of the summer is wet there will be a greater growth of late green stalks which, if suddenly checked by a change to dry and very warm weather, would mostly result in smut for the reason given.

Open smut in oats and barley seems to result from too rank a growth causing the thin bran covering of these grains to burst, often before the heads were shot out. Sometimes the same occurs in wheat. Sometimes also pollen does not reach their first heads before their blossom dies, or winds may also, if very strong in the morning, blow off or injure the blossom.

To prevent smut—prepare an even surface for the seed by harrowing well before sowing. Clean the seed well to leave an even sample of the best grains out of the crop from which the seed is taken. Soak in water that the grain may all take root as soon as sown, if the ground is a little dry. Sow with a press drill where the land will allow, and sow two bushels per acre or more. An even and full crop is in little danger of smut. I have no use for bluestone or lime as a preventive of smut, but lime or prairie dust may be put on the seed after soaking to prevent heating or sprouting before it is sown.

AN EXPLODED CANON.

There are few readers of the newspapers of the day who have not seen it announced as an axiom that every able bodied male immigrant was worth $1,000 to the country to which he came. The basis of the calculation was that the labor and consuming power of an able bodied man was worth to the country in which he lived and worked the cost of bringing him up from infancy to manhood, which was roughly estimated at $1,000; which cost the country of his birth had borne and which the country of his adoption had not to bear. This very brilliant idea—no doubt—originated in the fertile brain of some spread eagle orator south of the line, and scarcely needs to be seriously discussed to be shown to be utterly fallacious.

The following is the public expression of a university professor in the most progressive and cosmopolitan city in the United States—that is Chi. a go—on the subject of the value of immigrants and shows clearly that the value is in the kind and quality, not the quantity, of the immigration: "Wonderful, I am tempted to say miraculous, as the assimilating power of the American people has thus far proved itself to be, it has of late become highly questionable whether it will be worsted by what it is asked to do now, for it well nigh touches the bounds of the impossible. Not the bulk, but the character of immigration is beginning to open an appalling vista into the future. Immigrants who have little more in common with the people of the United States than the human shape and the most general features of human nature, thrown in solid blocks of hundreds and thousands into the country, coming with the set purpose to form and remain distinct communities within the country, not only unable, but unwilling, to be assimilated politically, or socially, intellectually or morally—that is a danger calculated to make every reflecting patriot blush. Every such colony, whether it be in large cities, or in a mining town, or any where else, is a blow struck at the very vital roots of American democracy.

The Qu'Appelle & Long Lake railway, owned by the same company as the Calgary & Edmonton, have a question of rival town sites in the Qu'Appelle valley. The original line ran to a point in the valley called Craven on the way to Long lake, a fine body of water about 60 miles long. The present company changed the route from by way of Long lake to a line running much further west, and branching off from the old route in the Qu'Appelle valley four miles short of Craven, established there a new town called Lumsden. They do not operate the short spur to Craven, and the settlers who went to that vicinity six or seven years ago expecting that the railway then built would be operated, naturally feel disappointed, not to say indignant.

A REPLY TO AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Which is the best and cheapest Dry Goods Store in Town? is the question now frequently asked by the Settlers, who have recently arrived in this district. In answer to this important question, I would respectfully but emphatically reply, the

MANCHESTER HOUSE.

Dealing as I do almost exclusively in Dry Goods, I have always on hand a larger and better assorted stock than any house in Town. Prices too are cut so fine, that it is frequently remarked by those who seek quotations "Why you are selling as cheap as they do down east, and in fact in some cases cheaper"

Many of the lines have been personally selected in the best English Markets.

IN LADIES' MEN'S AND CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENTS

CANADA WESTERN RAILWAY.

Notice of a bill to amend the act of incorporation of the Canada Western Railway Company has been published in the British Columbia Gazette as follows:

"So as to empower this company to lay out, construct and equip the railway from a point on the main line of the railway herein named at or near the North Bend of the Fraser river in Cariboo, along Parsnip Valley to the junction with the Peace river; thence east along the Peace river valley to the eastern boundary of British Columbia or an alternative route from such point through the Pine river pass; thence along the Pine river to its junction with the Peace river; thence to the boundary of British Columbia. Also an additional line from the same point at or near the North Bend of the Fraser river in Cariboo westward along the telegraph trail through the Babine mountains to the head waters of the Skeena river, thence following generally said river to the coast at or near Port Essington, and a line along the other branch of the Skeena river past Bear lake, to the head waters of the Ominica river; thence generally following said river to the junction of the line before described following the Parsnip river."

The Nanaimo Free Press takes this to mean that the Vancouver Island railway by way of Bute Inlet has been dropped and goes for the promoters in a rather rough shod way. However, the Colonist, of Victoria, and representative of the Canada Western Railway Co. deny that this is the intention of the amendment in question, saying in reply that it is simply intended to increase the powers of the railway company, by admitting of a branch line if desirable. The name of the railway is also to be changed, and other alterations are also contemplated.
